LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE TANK AND THE DUSTBIN

To the Editor of the " Daily Press." DEAR SIR. - I was about to address you some time since relative to a nuisance which had du iy arrested my attention, when another correspondent. I perceived, took the matter up with what I thought and hoped would have had the desired effect, but as I see that little if anything has been done to abute the nuisance, I take this opportunity, although somewhat late, of seconding the motion of your correspondent already alluded to. I refer to the Dust Bins in general, but more purticularly the one in close proximity to your office. It seems to me to have been a mistake to have placed Dustbin so near to a Tank and I cannot but agree with your Correspondent that the water is liable to be impregnated with the filth of the adjoining nuisance. However, allowing that the Lanting of the dust hole in that particular spot i necessary, and its remaining there is unavai pass morning and evening I see men examining the contents of the recentucle. arating with the atmost care the different spet of treasures and piling them in different hele on the bank of the nullah. Now as every day tinct heap emits probably as much odour as the whole collection would if permitted to remain undisturbed. I contend that the system of division and subdivision should not be allowed at the mouth of the duathin, but that the Contractors for the emptying of these holes should be required to remove the contents "on masse "every morning before 7 o'clock to their own premises. The system here of allowing the various trades or callings, whether they be stonemasons, carpenters or Dustbin Contractors to do their work in the streets is most objectionable, and the sooner it is put a stop to the better. Let the stonemason and carpenter work as much as may be on their own premises but above all let the Contractor for emptying Dustbins schroff his precious property in his own yard where the odours will be as sweet smelling insence to bimself and his neighbours but which Europeans do not appreciate at their true Chinese value. hot weather we must acknowledge that the re- for the above Company, are now prepared to moval of this and other similar nuisances would accept risks and to grant Policies on the usual be very desirable as their existence, besides of - terms.

BONNETT & Co.

Curry Paste,

From our own Correspondent. Paris, 18th May, 1864.

If people without a history were necessarily happy, the golden age would have begun a week ago; for the inhabitants of Old Europe; Correspondents are dumb, the journals silent, and speculators, generally well furnished with news-wander about seeking a pretext for the rise they desire or the fall they fear. a month past we have been in a state of feverawaiting the first results of the Conference of London, and whilst some pretended that peace was decided on, others declared that war was i evitable and would shortly take place. must avow that this latter opinion appeared to me very reasonable. At this moment we have neither peace or war but a state infinitely more disagreeable, full of doubts and uneasiness. It has been decided it is true, that the Danes shall raise the blockade of the German Ports, and the Austro-Prussians on the condition of retaining the position they occupy have consented to a suspension of arms for a month, from 12th of May. It is effecting much no doubt, to stop the effusion of blood, but very little if we compare what is done with what remains to be done. Since the signing of the suspension of hostilities a multitude of incidents shew us the difficulty of concluding a durable peace. the first place at the hour when the Danisl Plenipotentiaries, furnished with secret instructions from King Christian, consented the raising of the blockade, the Austrian Squadron of the North Sea, heaten by the Danish flest, took refuge at Heligoland. The news received at Copenhagen with transports of joy, and at Vienna with cries of rage-was saluted at London in the House of Commons by three jounds of hearty cheers—to the great fury of the Austrian Press which pours forth its thunders against England.

In fact in Denmark, three Ministers have given in their resignation on account of having refused to sign a suspension of arms which they considered as humiliating for their Country. As to the Prussians and in just accomplished a Coup detat. The Despite of the express terms of the convention, they have continued to raise contributions of war, and to treat Jutland as a conquered country. However it is said that if the King Christian has consented to raise the blockade. it is because England took a formal engagement to join in the war if by chance it commences again on the 12th of June; another symptom as little perceable as the others. You know, Mr. Editor, how circumspect Sweden has been for the last three months, only moving according to the advice of the Cabinet of St. James. Well, the Moniteur announces that a Swedish fleet is getting read to cruise in the Danish waters.

Nothing less than a miracle can render peace possible at the present moment. Every incident is of importance in the present situation of affairs; for instance, I must note to you particularly the reception of Mr. de Beust the representative of the German Diet by the English Ministers. Lord Palmerston scarcely deigned to salute this Diplomatist, who in his turn refused an invitation to an evening party given by Lady Palmerston.

As to France, Russia, and Austria, these three powers are impenetrable, and I am not Œdipus to guess the enigmas posed by these three Sphinzes.

One thing positive is that the Palmerston Cabinet is seriously compromised—not only by its policy, but still more so by its internal policy. A very great division has just taken place in the very bosom of the Cabinet. Mr. Bains brought forward a motion in the House of Commous tending to the extension of the Electoral franchise and the democratisation of Universal Suffrage; rejected by a majority of of voices, this proposition was fortunate enough to receive the encouragement of the Chancellor of the Exchequer Mr. Gladstone, who acknowledged that the working classes had a right to the suffrage. A thunderstorm bursting in the midst of the Cubinet of St. James would have frightened Lord Palmerstor less than the unforessen discourse of his colleague, who has just placed himself at the head of the radicals. But the actual Cabinet is so far discomposed, that in spite of the counsels of the Times, Lord Palmerston dare not get rid of the assistance of Mr. Gladstone. It is said it is true, that the First Lord of the Treasury, born as you know in 1784, will be forced by reason of his health to resign his functions—and it is not impossible in this case, that Mr. Gladstone might be called on to succeed him-but I believe that Lord Palmerston will fall rather than retire from a Post that he has so long occu-

The Liberal opinion of Europe is with Ma Gladstone. And the French Journals, too of ten unjust for English Statesmen, are unani mous in their praise. A great partisan of peace and economical reforms, Mr. Gladstone is, it is said greatly protected by the Queen, who will not hear talk of a war against the Germans-and yet we must arrive at this extremity if we do not wish to see Denmark absorbed by Prussia. La Gazette de Berlin, a progressionist organ, announces that the Prussians would see with pleasure the Duchies united under the sceptre of the Duke of Angustembourg, but on the condition that Scheswig-Holstein should be placed under the protection of Prussia. Mr. de Bismarck is entirely of this opinion, and is endeavoring by promising to guarantee Austria her posessions in Hungary and Venice, to interest her in his ambitious projects. As to the King William, I need not tell you he is devoted to his first Minister-who has no other will than that of his Minister. On the occasion of the discussion of the French Budget, the oppsition represented by Berrger, Thiers, Jules Favre, Polletan, Glois Bigoin, and especially Picard-renewed the exposition of their griefs. The government was shown to have an undecided Foreign Policybordering on the adventurous, one day encouraging the Poles and the next bowing to the notes of Gortschakoff, the friend of the King of Denmark, and on good terms with Germany, boasting of its sympathies for Italy and persisting in retaining Rome. I pass in silence the oratorical storm to which the Mexi-

With regard to home policy, the opposition

relied on the following facts. The budgets of the Monarchy of July and the Republic only reached the sum of 1,500 millions whilst for some years past they amount regularly to Three Rooms, Bath Rooms, &c. Rent $10 per two thousand and some hundreds of millions, and vetwe have no more liberty now than under the two Governments before mentioned Mr. Rouhers, the Minister of state, bravely sustained these attacks, but his arguments did not appear to me conclusive. He makes too much use of the honor of the French Flug and the glory of France and other fine speeches all very well for after dinner orations at the banquets of the Old Soldiers of the Empress. No one has attacked the honor of France, and it displays very bad grace to invoke Solfering and Magenta-in replying, to persons who only reproach a want of firmness in policy. Solferino was followed by the peace of Villaf.anca, and Rome and Venice are still waiting for the realisation of the famous programme of " Italy free from the Alps to the Adriatic." The moral to be derived from the discussions in the Corps Legislatif, is-that the government is more decided than ever to put the Liberals on one side. All the government commissions although less aggessive than usual were very clear on this point. The Press will not be more free te-morrow, than vesterday and the right of meeting, essential to the principle of 89-can only he exercised by those who will use it in a sense evidently favorable to the government. You remember the affair of Lesugues -the unfortunate guillotined in 1796 by a judicial error. The Corps Logislatif has just reclaimed the reinstatement of this innocent-u rejustatement vainly solicited by his family for the last 70 years. Jules Favre on this occasion pronounced a few eloquent words against the putishment of death. The rumours of ministerial modifications continue to circulate with an uneasy persistance. The governmental regious are divided into tones -in the one moves Mr. de Morny who considers constitutional liberty as indispensable for the maintenance of the Imperia dynasty. In the other Mr de Pessigny agitates-he is the Champion of Salutary rigonrs. These two personages are this moment engaged in a steeple chase the object of which is a Portfol'o. I have every reason to believe Mr. de Bereigny will win; Mr. de Morny in effect wishes to become President of the Council-which means ministerial responsibility-and if we may believe the govenment orators, this is still in future.

The news from Italy-foreshadow an early denouement to the Roman question. The Holy Father who was believed to be cured has had a severe relapse. His ulcerated legs covered with tumours cause him to be compared to Job-and the old gentleman is gradually sinking. This time the illness is serious-and the Italian National party who already discount the death of the Holy Father. and who imagine, too easily I am of opinion that from that day will date Italian Unity, is taking its measures in consequence. A member of the Italian Parliament has thought right to question the ministry on the action it intended to take with regard to Rome; he even proposed to annex the Poutifical States in spite of the French by inviting the Romans to send two deputies to the Turin Parliament. The Chamber on the motion of Mr.

Minghetti passed to the order of the day, but in a manner which shewed that the French havonets which shine in the Eternal city weighed seriously on their resolutions. Garibaldi has at length returned to his sland of Caprera. The Prince Couza-executive chief of Moldo Wallachia-and the protégé of France has puties aunoyed him-he consequently turned them out-but took care according to custom, to ask of Universal Suffrage the justification of his conduct. It appears that Turkey, the Prince Couza and the Cabinet of the Tuileries have agreed not to allow any interference whether by Russia or Austria in the Danubian provinces,—it is even said that n case of necessity they will not recoil before another Crimean war. I think Prince Couza would do wall to meditate on the position of Denmark before he attempts to irritate Russia. Christian also had powerful allies—he had married his daughter to the heir to the srown of England.

The United States is on the eve of the accomplishment of serious events-thoroughly impressed with the grave reponsibility of his mission, General Grant has devoted a whole month and an untiring activity to reorganise the army of the Potomac and coucentrate and prepare his forces.

Military operations have been delayed by folent storms and the state of the roads. General Lee has received considerable reuforcements and has fortified with care his position on the Rapidan. It appears that the plan of the Federals is to march upon Michmond from three different points one army will march from the West to threaten the right flank, the other under the orders of Burnside will come from North Carolina and fall on the rear of Richmond-and General Grant at the head of the third Army will march directly from the North and give bat-

Under present circumstances the defeut of he Confederates will deliver Richmond into the hands of the Federals, and the war will downs. If on the contrary, General Grant is repuls.

ed-the Confederates will be forced to beat Smith and Burnside; in this case -scarcely probable-the war will last another year. The Federals have sustained two serious checks-the loss of Fort Pillow, and the defeat of the army of General Banks-but the importance of these was exaggerated and cannot have any influence on the war.

The commercial situation at New York is very tight on account of the rise in exchange. but this fact, which is reproduced on the eve of all the battles announced before hand, indicates nothing-and is to be attributed to speculation only.

The Massacros at Fort Pillow have produced great excitement throughout the North. President Lincoln, who will shortly submit to the chances of a re-election, is difinitively the Candidate of the Republican party, and the perspective of his re-election causes a great amount of tranquillity in the North.
